

THE SUNDAY BEFORE THE FEAST OF THE GLORIOUS BIRTH OF OUR LORD

From the Desk of the Pastor

During the dark of night, as the Church prays in her Office of Vigils – lilyo – she concludes this lengthy series of prayers and hymns with a set of psalms known as the teshboohto in Syriac or the sajdi in Arabic – literally, the “praises.” This set of psalms (148-150) is a common part of Eastern Christian prayer. This set of psalms has at its core a central theme – the praise of God by all the things He has created: the sun, moon, stars, waters, earth, fire, hail rain, dew, mist, winds, mountains, hills, trees, beasts, tame animals, angels, saints, kings, rulers, old and young.

For centuries in parishes of the Maronite Church that might not have the ability to pray the lengthy midnight office before the Christmas liturgy, they preserved the practice of praying together these psalms before the liturgy. Like most Syriac hymnody, each verse is alternated between two groups. While one group is chanting a passage of the psalms, the other group is performing prostrations. This is a beautiful expression of Christian prayer – we simultaneously prostrate ourselves before God in our weakness, our sinfulness, and our humility and we stand boldly and with confidence before God to offer the praise and glory that is due to Him!

These beautiful psalms exemplify a Christian understanding of the Incarnation and Christmas: because our God out of love for His creation chose of His own will to become man, He has reconciled Himself to all that He has made. As a result of this salvation and outpouring of humility and love on the part of our Creator, we, His creation, cry out with praise and glory – along with all of creation. We, along with the heavens and earth, skies and seas, fruits and trees, animals and beasts, angels, and saints, wonder at the Child of Wonder Who has come to visit His creation!

Let everything that has breath praise the Lord!

HE LAID LIKE A BABY, AND IN HIM WAS HIDDEN
THE WEALTH OF WISDOM WHICH KNOWS ALL.
